Jailbait

Saturday 16 May 2009 23:01

During the week going to the REWE after 20:00 just means there aren't many people there and no annoying kids (and sometimes no milk). But on Friday and Saturday night Blankenese's pre−party crowd is also there. German supermarkets sell vast amounts of hard liquor, but only to people old enough to drink and drive. So if you look like you can get Bowmore Islay out the store without having to ask the checkout girl for ID, don't be surprised if there's jailbait to make you an offer you can't refuse. Well, IANAL, TINLA and I don't want to push things after signing some controversial petition. How can I tell they're not undercover cops trying to frame me?

by Roland van Ipenburg http://www.xs4all.nl/~ipenburg/blog/posts/dull/2009/05/16/jailbait/