Saint Pierre colored houses

Saturday 14 November 2009 04:00

After three years I finally managed to sort out some of the pictures of my holiday to North America, and these are the ones of some of the characteristic bright colored buildings in the town of Saint Pierre on the island Saint Pierre, which is located off the coast of Newfoundland. Looking back on it the whole thing was pretty insane, but that's what happens if you've got some credit cards, a passport, some free time, the internet and a fearless heart.

by Roland van Ipenburg
http://www.xs4all.nl/~ipenburg/blog/posts/dull/2009/11/14/saint−pierre−colored−houses/