Deutscher Perl Workshop 2009

Tuesday 3 March 2009 23:17

Last week I was attending the German Perl Workshop at the Haus der Jugend in Frankfurt am Main. Three days of interesting talks in German about Perl.

This picture also illustrates why I stick to my low−res P800. Everything is so blurry that I don't think anyone is recognizable, so I can just publish pictures like this without having to ask everyone in the picture for permission to publish this, or start manually blurring stuff. I mean, just dumping a bunch of raw 10+ Megapixel images with timestamps and full GPS coordinates online for everyone with evil intentions to harvest is a Bad Thing.
